SIXTH WAR LOAN DRIVE STARTS NEXT MONDAY, NOV. 20TH.

Hancock County stands ready to launch its Sixth War Loan Drive next Monday, November 20, according to an announcement made this week by W. J. Gex, Jr., chairman of the County Drive.

The county's E-Bond quota is $113,000 with quota for all other bonds $157,000.

Since attending a recent meeting of county and district War Finance leaders, local officials have been busy assigning community quotas and clearing last minute details for starting the drive.

"One of the most important topics discussed at the meeting was 'E-Bond Victory Day' on December 7," the chairman said. "We are joining in with the state wide plan to reach our E-Bond quota on or before December 7, third anniversary of Pearl Harbor."

It is fitting and proper that we, as loyal citizens, observe this infamous day in a way to make the Japs remember it, and we can think of no better way to reach our E-Bond quota by that time. If we are to meet our quota by E-Bond Victory Day, we must naturally see that more E-Bonds are bought prior to December 7th.

"This is a war time assignment and the job can be done quickly. Crops have been good and while getting them out has been a trying experience the people of our county are ready to double up and meet our E-Bond challenge. Everybody says there is more money in circulation than ever before and the job should be easy. We are not going to wait, however, for buyers to come after bonds. We are going after the buyers and make E-Bond Victory Day a reality."

It was explained that more details on the local "E-Bond Victory Day" plan will be announced later. Meanwhile, local officials are busy assigning quotas to various communities and geographical areas in the county. Campaign organization and plans are better perfected and preliminary surveys indicate the Sixth War Loan will be launched with a complete home-front army of volunteers determined to put it over.

NEW YORK . . . MODISH METROPOLIS

By Ann Andrews
New York styles at the moment run to novelties. I was surprised to note the costume jewelry displayed in shop windows and worn, on hats, coats, on necks, arms or what-have-you, but definitely a jeweled ornament in evidence somewhere to lend just the right amount of chic to a costume.

Hats in varied styles, especially small, bumper hats. Creators have tried in vain to develop the bigger hats, but modern, busy women today carrying their own packages find it impossible to hold on arm in mid-air clamping on a brimmed hat, while with the other embracing their multitudinous purchases. Yes, the small hat is here and here for the duration. The bumper hat that I speak of is a modified version of the pill box which too is gaining prominence this season. Both can be worn jeweled, veiled, hatted in pearl or sequin, or just tailored depending on the occasion.

Rex vanities always so much in demand I found especially attractive in the vanity bag type, the roman striped pouch and silk-corded drawstring adding to a costume for afternoon or evening wear. I think the young try will go for these!

Jewelry, many reproductions of antique pieces are now being shown, whether it be watch fobs, cuff links made into earrings or chatelaines, all from grandmother's day. The Chatelaine is the newest of this variety and can be worn on the lapel of a dress or suit, or in the belt of a skirt most effectively. It is surprising the elegance and style it lends to a black dress which I saw so smartly displayed in one of the Madison Avenue shop windows.

Colors are vivid. The dulcett, but one of the most interesting color combinations being the brown worn with black. Evidently created for the milk-coated woman who grew tired of accessories constantly in brown. The brown worn with the black is a dull, heather tone, rather than the saddle brown which might first come to mind. The tomato red has been displayed in coats and suits, particularly in tuxedo style bedecked with gray flat furs. A most striking color note to be sure, but to be worn with an air!

Reported Safe

Lt. John H. Heath, dive bomber pilot, U. S. Navy, was reported missing in action in September but is a survivor according to advices received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Heath, 2235 Palmer avenue, New Orleans. No details of the rescue were given in the telegram to his parents.

Book Review

The common greeting of the book loving group is "Are you going to hear Harriet Kane on November 20 at the Episcopal Parish House at 3:40 P. M.?"

It is true that Mr. Kane will be here at that time in a review of his latest book "Deep Delta Country" and the public is indebted to the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library Board for this opportunity to hear a distinguished author give a review of a book the first printing of which was sold before it was off the press. Can you afford to miss it?

Do you like to own an autographed copy of a book? The library has 50 copies of Deep Delta Country for sale and if bought at the library before the review or at the review Mr. Kane will autograph them.

Mr. Kane's charm as a writer is well known. The book is about a section of the United States which has a supply of rich material for books which has never been exhausted.

Mr. Kane tells in the book of the "farthest down Mississippi"—the brilliant sugar plantations, the gay and rollicking life of the river and bar pilots, weird folk beliefs, eerie feasts of the dead and much more that makes the book a gripping story that demands that you read it.

Come and hear him—Monday, November 20, at 3:40 p. m. at the Episcopal Parish House. Give yourself a pleasant afternoon for the nominal sum of 25c and swell the book fund of your library.

DESCRIBES NAZI WAR PLANT

THE difficult task of knocking Germany out of the war from the air is described by Raymond Daniell, in a dispatch to The New York Times from Thionville, France describing a German "Willow Run" where a huge ordnance plant was run partly with slave labor, to turn out big guns for use against Allied Armies.

We will not give the details as to the women treated like slaves and compelled to work in the factories. They included Czechs, Ukrainians and Poles, who were compelled to work from daylight to dusk, lived in barracks packed like sardines and marched to and from their place of labor.

The correspondent says that he has seen Willow Run and the Chrysler Tank Arsenal, but the former is only a little more impressive and the latter only a little less than the 60-acre arsenal loaded with production belts, assembly lines, overhead cranes and all the gadgets of mass-production associated with Detroit. Railroad cars on spurs inside the factory were loaded with finished gun barrels for all the fronts and heavy guns were in all stages of manufacture.

The correspondent makes the amazing assertion that in this one ordnance factory, "which is only one of many similar uncharted ones" there were forty-eight highly-specialized cutting and drilling machines. This means little to the average man, but it can best be gauged by the fact, he says, "On D-Day the United States in all its arsenals and at the Homestead Steel Mill had exactly twenty machines of a comparable nature."

This is a fact of tremendous importance. Its significance is increased by the statement that the plant was duplicated on the east bank of the Moselle. Only a few weeks ago, these plants were turning out munitions for the enemy. Others are hidden in unsuspected places and, apparently, were undetected by aerial reconnaissance. Naturally, this reminds us of the baseball commentary, "You can't hit 'em if you can't see 'em."

EISENHOWER ON THE WAR

GENERAL Dwight C. Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander admits that there is a hard job ahead of our soldiers fighting along the western frontier of Germany. "Anyone who discounts the nature of the battle that must be fought," declares the General, "is guilty of wishful thinking."

The Allied Commander says that the Nazi Party is holding a pistol at the "kidneys" of the German people and that, under such coercion, there may be underground and guerrilla fighting long after cessation of actual military hostilities. Present enemy resistance is based on desperation rather than commonsense.

General Eisenhower expresses the belief that the Nazi fanatics will not give up but will go into mountain retreats and underground to continue determined resistance. While some of the German people see no hope and would like to end the war, they dare not voice their desires because determined Nazis are among them to shoot them if they give up.

MARSHALL'S FEARS

GENERAL George C. Marshall, United States Army Chief of staff, who has just returned from the European battlefronts, asked the people of this country to permit no echoes to reach the men in the grip of battle that would indicate a belief at home that the war is practically over in Europe.

The General points out that the Allied forces on the Western front and in Italy are attacking along almost 1,100 miles of blazing battle lines, fighting in the cold and mud, against an enemy occupying favorable defensive positions and offering a desperate resistance.

He does not want soldiers in the midst of battle to get the idea that the people at home believe they have a push-over. He frankly expresses fears of a "revulsion of feeling that would follow such a disclosure in the midst of present battles."

OUR ENEMY HAS TWO HOPES

WINSTON Churchill, in his address to the House of Commons, declares that:

"The enemy has two hopes: First, is that by lengthening the struggle he may wear down our resolution. The second and more important hope is that division will arise between the three great powers by which he is assailed and whose continued union spells his doom."

As usual the British Prime Minister puts his finger on the matter. He adds that the foe hopes that some rift will split the alliance, that "quarrels may arise about the Balkans or about Poland or about Hungary" which will cause the Russians to go one way and the United States and Great Britain to go the other.

Naturally, Mr. Churchill thinks that "our efforts must ceaselessly be bent" to deprive the enemy of this hope. He realizes that "three great powers so differently circumstanced" have many differences in views about the treatment of the numerous countries into which their victorious armies have carried them."

Admitting that he has "not hesitated to travel from court to court like a wandering minstrel" the British leader adds that always he has had "the same song or the same set of songs."

After all, he marvels that "all hitherto has kept so solid, sure and sound between us all."

When Stalin suggests that Japan is an aggressor nation, Tokyo pricks its ears; it means something.

Hitler succeeded in fooling most of the German people but the day of reckoning is close at hand.

Report: Nobody has heard the Tokyo radio recently; asking where the American Navy happens to be.

Few people study to discover the truth; most of us seek to confirm our errors and perpetuate our prejudices.

The Office of Price Administration has acted to restore low-priced cigars on the retail market and, at the same time, compensate manufacturers for sharply increased material and labor costs.

The action is expected to make possible estimated savings of fifty million dollars annually to cigar smokers of the nation.

Under new maximum price schedules, effective November 13, the 5-cent cigar of March, 1942, will retail at 2 for 15c, the 10-cent cigar of 1942 at 2 for 20 cents, and the 25-cent cigar of 1942 at 2 for 65 cents.

In granting the increases, OPA made it mandatory that manufacturers resume production of low-priced cigars, which had virtually disappeared from the market under previous price schedules, at a comparable ratio with 1942 sales.

Early white potatoes of the 1945 crop have been brought under dollar-and-cent ceiling prices that will result in retail prices comparable with last season's after price control became effective, District OPA Director Holcomb said.

The dollar-and-cent ceilings were set as grower level with retail prices established by a fixed percentage mark-up. The new prices were recommended by the War Food Administration to assure fair return to growers and maintain production of potatoes.

The OPA and Santa Claus are working together this Christmas in an effort to keep prices of toys within reach of families of moderate incomes.

District Director Holcomb said OPA early this year established maximum prices for many new Xmas toys and the toy price staff in Washington has recently been tripled to take care of new items appearing on the market.

Although applications for maximum prices have been arriving in the Washington office at more than twice the rate of last year, the increased staff has been able to clear all filed properly.

Major Holcomb said enforcement staffs of OPA have been instructed to give as much attention as possible to Christmas toy sales this year to prevent widespread overcharges such as reported last year. Consumers are asked to report suspected overcharges to their local War Price and Rationing Board.

Used toys, as well as new toys, are covered by OPA maximum prices, OPA said, which require that such toys be sold at no more than three-fourths of the original cost if in good workable condition.

Despite tremendous inflationary pressures, overall food prices actually dropped 6.2 per cent from May 1943, to March 1944, Major Holcomb, District Director of the OPA, said today.

At the same time, figures cited by OPA showed, the average family's expenditure for food rose sharply because most families were buying more and better quality of food. About 40 per cent of the average family's money spent goes for food.

As victory nears the already increasing demand for more and better food will grow and greater inflationary pressures are expected, Major Holcomb said. To maintain adequate price control on food as a bulwark against disastrous inflation which followed the first World War, grocers have joined with OPA in sponsoring a Grocer-Consumer Anti-Inflation Campaign during the final months of this year.

Posters and placards supporting the campaign are now on display at most retail food stores in this area. The posters urge all housewives to use OPA price lists displayed in all stores as a means of keeping food prices in line. The placards pledged support of the store to the program.

Pointing out that consumers are the key to the nationwide campaign, Major Holcomb said various civic organizations, especially women's groups are being urged to take an active part in the program.

Major purpose of the drive is to encourage all grocery buyers to make full use of OPA price lists as a guide for all purchases of groceries, meats and fresh fruits and vegetables and as protection for themselves against possible overcharges and for the grocer against unfair competition.

Despite widespread talk of the

Awarded Combat Infantryman Badge

With the 37th Infantry Division in the Southwest Pacific (Special) Two residents of Kiln and one of Perkinston, Mississippi have been awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge for service in combat against the Japanese on Hill 129, Bougainville Island.

They are:

Private First Class Elvin J. Bobinger, 27, son of Ambrosine Bobinger. His wife, the former Lillie Cuevas, and their two sons Elvin and Lonnie, also reside in Kiln.

Private First Class Nicole J. Neceise, 23, son of Nick Neceise. His wife, Mrs. Wilma Neceise, and their daughter, Myrna Fay, reside in Kiln.

Staff Sergeant Clarence P. Hoda, 25, husband of the former Virgie Neceise of Perkinston and son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hoda, Route 1, Pass Christian.

The badge consists of a silver rifle on an Infantry blue field imposed on a silver wreath and is to the combat doughboy what "wings" are to the Air Force.

Overseas 18 months, they have served also in New Hebrides and Guadalcanal.

"high cost of living," the Office of Price Administration said today the third wartime Thanksgiving dinner should actually cost less than last year.

Using a sample menu for a family of six including turkey, cranberry sauce, pumpkin pie and other traditional holiday dishes OPA compared ceiling prices of individual ingredients with ceiling or average prices of last year.

Totals indicated the Thanksgiving dinner for the family of six should cost nearly 2 per cent less—the exact figure dependent upon local prices and the class of store where bought.

Turkey itself should be cheaper this year because ceiling prices are lower. Eggs, onions, celery and lettuce should cost less. On the other hand, cranberries will be higher because of recent adjustments in ceiling prices to compensate growers for unusual crop losses caused by adverse weather.

Thanksgiving Day meals in restaurants should be no higher than last year and in one case may exceed by more than 15 per cent the restaurant's regular prices for Sunday dinners of the same class, OPA said.

Y. P. C. A. Sponsors Party At Dedeaux

Combined party and weiner roast was given in the Dedeaux community last Sunday night. The party was sponsored by the Young Peoples' Catholic Association of Dedeaux, a newly organized organization with a great future.

The prizes for the tuckiest went to M. J. (Pete) Ladner as No. 1. He was dressed as a girl and carried a doll into the party. No. 2 prize winner was Mammie Ladner, senior, in Dedeaux school who was dressed as a boy and proudly displayed the banner "Keep Em Flying" across her back. Both winners were given a Rosary by Rev. Father Waters, pastor of the Sacred Heart Church of Dedeaux. Judges in the contest were Father Shermesser of Lumberton; Mrs. F. E. Ladner, Mrs. Walton Ladner and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Deschamps.

The planning of all details of the party goes chiefly to Misses Virginia Mammie Ladner, Miss Irene Ladner, Miss Pearl Mally, Mrs. F. E. Ladner and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Deschamps.

The weiner roast was sponsored by Woodrow Ladner who stuck to his promise to the basketball players on the boys team of Dedeaux. The

AT A & G. THEATRE SUNDAY AND MONDAY 'GREENWICH VILLAGE'

Joy-Packed With Laughs, Songs and Stars

20th Century-Fox's new Technicolor musical "Greenwich Village," at the A. & G. Theatre, Sunday and Monday is the merriest Mardi-Gras of laughs, tunes, romantic doings and gay spectacle ahead of the field in musicals. 20th Century-Fox has really "shot the works" on this one, including the stand-out cast starring Carmen Miranda, Don Ameche, William Bendix and Vivian Blaine, "The Cherry Blonde," a perfect dream of a production, and the most dazzling Technicolor this side of heaven. The film is packed tight with more than a Mardi-Gras—more girls than a harem, more songs than a flock of mocking birds, and solid, downright fun that reaches a new high in hilarious entertainment.

Carmen Miranda was never grander, for "Greenwich Village" gives the exotic bombshell a long-overdue opportunity to reveal her talents as one of the screen's best comedienne (in addition to her unusual singing and dancing), and La Miranda makes the most of it. Ameche is in his usual high form. The acting versatility of the handsome star is amazing.

Gravel-voiced William Bendix lets out all the stops in this picture (even to the point of singing and dancing), and, as usual, he's tops all the way through.

To Vivian Blaine, "The Cherry Blonde," this reviewer tosses a special "good-luck" bouquet of orchids. From her performance, it's not hard to see that 20th Century-Fox has made a real "discovery" in this beauty who has all the signs of becoming another Betty Grable or Alice Faye. She's got looks; she can dance; she can sing—and all in a way that's simply terrific! You're sure to be seeing a great deal more of Vivian in top roles.

The sensational terpsichore of Tony and Sally De Marco and the hit songs by Le Robin and Nacio Herb Brown are a delight to see and hear.

"Greenwich Village" is entertainment-plus. Don't miss it!

promise being that the first game the boys played in the tournament at Kila a week ago if they won a weiner roast would be part of their reward and a great game they did play when they defeated St. Martin in the semi-finals. The weiner roast was also a great success. Hot dogs, cake and punch was served.

Among those attending were Father Waters of Dedeaux, Father Shermesser of Lumberton, Father Hoffman of Chicago, who just completed a mission at Dedeaux; Sam Favre, Supt. of Education of Hancock County; Trustees of Dedeaux Hi School; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Deschamps, Mrs. F. E. Ladner and many others who helped make the weiner roast a success.

ORTIE THEATRE SUNDAY & MONDAY "SONG OF RUSSIA"

Starring Robert Taylor and Susan Peters

In his last film role of the duration, Robert Taylor plays a love song conductor who finds a love that spans the ocean in M-G-M's "Song of Russia." Susan Peters is co-starred with Taylor in the film to show Sunday-Monday at Ortie Theatre.

When John Meredith (Taylor) and his manager, Hank Higgins (Robert Benchley) arrive in Russia for a concert tour in the spring of 1941, they are enthusiastically received by all Russian musicians. Taylor's crowded schedule does not include a stop at the village of Tschalkovskoe. Nadya Stepanova (Susan Peters) undertakes a trip to Moscow to persuade Taylor to conduct in her town. Meredith falls in love with the lovely Russian girl, follows her home, and despite her practical objections wins her hand in marriage. The happy couple joyfully set off on their honeymoon, finishing Meredith's concert tour.

Nadya is a talented pianist and Meredith persuades her to make her debut as soloist with his orchestra. On the night of Nadya's great triumph the Nazis invade Russia. Nadya is torn between love and duty, since her village is near the front. They decide to continue with the concert tour, but after hearing Stalin's famous "scorched earth" speech Nadya knows she must return home and Meredith continues on alone. At the end of the tour Meredith rejoins Nadya just after the Germans have destroyed the village. He finds her in the fields helping to burn the crops. A Nazi flyer machine-guns the field and little Darryl Hickman is killed. Meredith resolves to fight beside the Russians, but is persuaded that the best work he can do is to return to America and help keep alive the precious culture of Russian music.

Robert Taylor, playing a symphony conductor, makes John Meredith one of the most memorable characters. Susan Peters makes believable the Russian girl who captures the heart of the famous American. Their great love is truly significant in view of present international relations.

Woven throughout the film are symphonic renditions of Russian masters, especially Tschalkowsky and the song "And Russia Is Her Name," already made popular on the airwaves, especially written for the film by Jerome Kern and E. Y. Harburg, is featured prominently.
